

GRANT NON-SUIT IN CASE AGAINST BRISTOL FIRM

Judge Hiram Keller Orders Compulsory Action in Case of John Falcon, Deceased

OTHER COURT CASES

Court Turns Down Petition of 25 Taxpayers of Milford
Township

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 26.—A compulsory non-suit was granted yesterday by Judge Hiram Keller in the case of John Falcon, deceased, against the Superior Zinc Corporation, a corporation of the State of Penna., and located at Bristol. Howard I. James, of Bristol, represented the plaintiff, and Donald Smith, Perkaskie, attorney, represented the defendant.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer, in the Court of Quarter Sessions, in the case of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania versus Jacob Underkoffler, dismissed the motion and refused a new trial. The defendant is directed to appear in court for sentence on or before Monday, May 2.

In the Orphans' Court, President Judge Keller handed down an opinion in the estate of Lester Bond, deceased, sur exceptions to auditor's report, in which the exceptions of the report of the auditor are overruled and the report is confirmed.

In the Court of Common Pleas, President Judge Keller handed down an opinion in the case of Luther A. Harr, Secretary of Banking of the Commonwealth of Penna., receiver of Northwestern Trust Co., versus Clarence E. Williams, in which he stated the motion for a new trial is allowed and a new trial is awarded.

With Judge Boyer on the bench, the case of Stanley Pospisil versus William W. Hall and Anna D. Hall, in an action in trespass was begun.

This is the beginning of the third trial.

March 11, 1936, a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, in the sum of $742.10 and costs, was rendered.

October 23, 1936 a verdict of $1386.74 for the plaintiff was awarded. The Court allowed a new trial March 9, 1937, according to the record.

President Judge Hiram H. Keller today turned down a petition of twenty-five taxpayers of Milford township asking the supervisors to appoint a police officer in that district. The refusal was officially announced in an opinion handed down by the Court.

"The Court would not be justified, under the circumstances, to commit the taxpayers to an additional financial burden such as would be necessary if this appointment were made," Judge Keller remarked.

The district seeking a police officer is second class township. This is the first time on record that a similar petition was filed. Judge Keller emphasized the point that his refusal would result in a saving to the taxpayers, commenting additionally that the Pennsylvania Motor Police, because of increased man-power within the county, are available for community protection throughout the county.

"Milford township is a rural agricultural community and the conditions existing there are no different from the other rural second class townships of the county," the Court added.

The district has a constable and two deputies for the respective election districts and with these officers, together with the greatly increased number of Pennsylvania Motor Police which have been assigned to Bucks County, and which are available to various sections, if needed, there seems to be no actual necessity for any additional full-time paid officers.

Trial started shortly before noon in the case of Alice Howe Price, of Philadelphia, against George S. Cornell, an action in trespass growing out of an automobile accident. The case is being tried before Judge Keller.

WINNERS OF HUMANE POSTER PRIZES GIVEN

Schools Throughout Bucks
County Are Represented;
Mark "Humane Week"

LIST SPECIAL PRIZES

"Humane," or "Be Kind to Animals Week," April 24-30, is here again, to be celebrated throughout the nation, in schools, churches, and various other ways, by all who have in mind the great need still existing for better protection of all animals, domestic and wild.

Special thought to the needs of these pets includes proper living quarters, plenty of fresh water at all times, and plenty of shade, too, with Summer approaching, state Bucks County Humane Club officials. "And this applies to farm animals who are put out to pasture, and sometimes no thought is given to protecting them from the Summer heat."

"Do you have a boy who wants, or now owns, a rifle, shot gun, or other weapon of destruction?" is a question asked by the club. "If so, possibly you may care to consider exchanging such weapon for a camera, which precaution may save not only the lives of our very useful friends, the birds, to say nothing of other living creatures which may become targets, but possibly the eyesight, or even the life of some human being. In a study made by the National Society for Prevention of Blindness, it was revealed that 21 per cent of eye accidents to children in play are caused by such weapons as air rifles, BB guns, slingshots, etc.

"If you own a dog, any veterinarian can give you directions for proper feeding... the breed of dog determines this, partly, of course, and don't forget to provide some way for him to obtain exercise, which all animals should have."

During "Humane Week" the Bucks County Humane Club presents the prizes given to the selected posters received in the Kindness to Animals Poster Contest recently held in the County schools, and announces the following pupils receiving rewards and honorable mention.

Primary grades, first prize, Herbert Bennett, Croydon; second, Glenna Straley, Warmminster; third, Roger Icelow, Solebury.

Group 2, Class A, first, Dorothy Peterson, Cornwells; second, Aurora Luzzi, Cornwells; third, Vella Luzzi, Cornwells. Same group, first prize to Donald Schlegel, South Langhorne; second, Harold Drumm, Harriman.

Insurgent Drive Halted

Hendaye, France, Apr. 26.—The new Spanish Insurgent drive on the Teruel front has been halted, according to government claims from Barcelona today. A Barcelona communique stated: "Insurgent tanks, artillery and aircraft attacks on the Teruel front have been repulsed. Many prisoners and much war materials have been taken by the government forces." This statement was issued a few hours after insurgent planes bombed Valencia, killing between 50 and 100 persons and causing fires in various sections of that important government seaport.

School Board $300

STAFF IS NOW AT WORK

Thousands of classroom and text books are being cleaned, repaired, and rebound, under a WPA project sponsored by the board of directors of Bristol public schools.

The books, used by Bristol public school students, are being refurbished at the present in the auditorium of Wood street school building, books being taken there from the down town school buildings. Later the center of activity may be shifted to the high school building, where books for use in that building will be given attention.

Twelve are working on the project at the present time, with Miss Estelle Ensig, Edgely, as project supervisor. The employees are from Bristol and surrounding territory.

Approximately $8300 has been allotted for the work, the government providing over $8,000, and the school authorities less than $300.

Electrical machinery is in place in the Wood street building. There are pressers, binders, buffers, etc. Book-binding cloth in a variety of colors is being used.

After the work of cleaning, re-binding, etc., is completed, the workers will catalogue and index the same where necessary.

The length of time required to complete the work depends upon the number of employees maintained. The original plan called for 18, although the full quota has not been employed to date.

Bristol Township Student Is Starring in Temple Play

When Templars present their production of George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" at Temple University, Philadelphia, Friday and Saturday evenings, "the Man" will be played by a Bristol Township youth, who has been scoring hits in local dramatic presentations since he enrolled at the University four years ago.

Even as an undergraduate at Bristol high school, Ralf M. Bilderback, 55 Radcliffe street, Edgely, was interested in the theatre, played in several of the school shows and became president of the dramatic club.

At the University, where he is a senior in the marketing department of the school of commerce, Bilderback is constantly identified with the dramatic society, and has scored three notable hits in its productions.

His first big role came in "Murder in B Flat" when critics saw him as a "natural." Then came the part of the warrior in "Noah" and more recently his greatest hit as the gangster in "Night of January 16th."

Yet he has not limited his talents to dramatics, for as art editor of "The Owl," student humor publication, Bilderback is steadily busy at sketching cover designs and comic cartoons.

And as if that were not enough to do with his time, he has turned to help in numerous campus campaigns, assisted in the production of the varsity show, which was broadcast from the University campus, and maintained an honor standing in scholastics.

He is a member of Alpha Delta Sigma, honorary advertising fraternity, and head of the Marketing Club.

CONSEQUENCES

How far a train of consequences can reach, when set in motion by a single act disturbing a usual routine of international dealing, is well illustrated in Mexico's seizure of foreign oil properties, and its reverberations since and to come.

The decision of the Cardenas administration to expropriate was countered by ours to lower the price of silver, government purchases of which have supported the Mexican financial structure. Without foreign oil distributing services at its disposal, Mexico is not prepared at once to market oil abroad, and the effect of this interruption and the dwindling of returns for silver, on employment and other factors which bear on the national economy, helps to precipitate a domestic political crisis which imperils the existence of the Cardenas regime.

This, in turn, may have dire implications for us, if a succeeding regime should assume one or another of the new European patterns. Finally, there are the incidental consequences growing from our new relation, such as a probable discouragement of what has been a flourishing tourist trade on which Mexico has put some store.

Like a rock tossed into a placid pond, a single untoward element dropped today into an international status leaves ever-widening circles which affect the whole body.

MARCH TO THE SEA

Not since General Sherman's march through Georgia has history recorded a military exploit to compare to General Franco's march to the Mediterranean in Spain. Barcelona, temporary capital of loyalist Spain, has been definitely severed from Madrid and faces siege. Abandoned by all the world except Russia, only a miracle can prevent the conquest of Spain by the forces of Mussolini and Hitler.

But heads of the Barcelona government refuse to admit that their cause is lost and loyalist troops are fighting valiantly to prevent the conquest of Spain. The government insists that Barcelona and Valencia will prove as invulnerable as has Madrid.

The preponderance of mechanization, which is on the insurgent side, will no doubt win in the end, but fascism already knows that it has met a worthy foe in the fighting Spaniard. It is worthy of note that large cities, considered most vulnerable to attack by modern war methods, alone have withstood all that modern militarism could hurl against them. Proudly even now, fascism is concocting new inventions of the devil to overcome this unexpected defeat of the totalitarian ideal.

Traffic conditions are reported dense in the Loch Lomond area, with sopranos jamming the high road to Scotland, and contraltos the low.

Lions aren't what they once were. Clyde Beatty's are doing the Big Apple for this year's circus crowds, and the Caesars have taught Britain to roll over.

Britain's foreign minister, who became positively ill on hearing of the Vienna coup, was fair to muddling at latest report.

Washington seems to have run out of ideas to ease the present lull. Toward the end of the depression it gave us legal beer to cry into.

The Great Game of Politics

nevertheless makes politics inevitable. The Federal organizations, which administer relief in the States, have all been named on recommendation of either the Democratic pro-Administration Senators or Democratic machine bosses. In Pennsylvania, for example, the relief personnel was really picked by Senator Guffy; in Missouri, by Boss Pendergast; in Illinois, by the Messrs. Kelly and Nash, and so on. Under such a system, it is clear that political influence can be used to put people on the relief rolls. It not only can be but was and is. Certainly it was very largely used in the 1936 campaign and will be used in this one. Charges that it is being done now in Florida in the interests of Senator Claude Pepper and in Pennsylvania for the Lewis-Guffy ticket have already been made.

NOW, this does not mean that most of the people put on the rolls by the politicians ought not to be there—though there is no doubt that some of them shouldn't. But none of them should be put there that way—because what that really amounts to is the buying of their votes with the taxpayers' money. Every posted person knows this to be true and the denials of the WPA administration are perfunctory and unconvincing. There is nothing to do but deny it, even though in private the Administration leaders make no secret of the facts. "Of course," said one of the biggest of the Roosevelt political strategists, in discussing the 1936 results, "we never could have swung the Negro vote but for the relief money." That is pretty bald and brutal, but it happens to be one hundred per cent accurate.

SUCH a state of affairs is without precedent. The mixture of politics with relief is abhorrent to all decent citizens and it should arouse deep and overwhelming public resentment. There are various reasons this has not developed. One is a lack of general understanding of the facts promoted by the vociferous denials from Washington; another is the reluctance of men in politics to subject themselves to the denigrating declaration that they are against "human rights" or willing to "see people starve" when they try to be realistic on this subject. Another is the desire of political candidates to avail themselves of this wonderful new political asset, which enables them to put more voters on the pay roll than they ever dreamed of before, and at the same time, relieve distress.

THE difficulties of doing anything about it are very great. A Senatorial committee named to investigate the whole relief and unemployment situation has just made a report in which it avoids any recommendation, declares a "more complete report" will be made later, which means after election. There is before Congress now a proposal from Representative Robert Love Bacon, of New York, to which it is hard to see objection. It would establish a bi-partisan Federal board to apportion money to the States on condition that the States did their share. The administration in the States would be in the hands of bi-partisan State boards. It is not proposed in this bill either to decrease the appropriation Mr. Roosevelt asks or to go back to the straight dole to which he is opposed. But it would vastly lessen the opportunity for partisan politics and increase the efficiency of distribution. But, nothing will be done with Mr. Bacon's proposal, though it is aimed directly at the solution of the gravest and most menacing of our national problems. For one thing, Mr. Bacon is a Republican; for another, this is an election year.

Weekly Letter to Home-Makers

A Letter Written by Miss Edna M. Ferguson to Home-Makers will appear in each Tuesday's issue of The Bristol Courier. Through this medium Miss Ferguson will give many helpful hints to home-makers.

Have you ever been out in a "Sugar Bush?"

Lucky are the folks for whom those words bring back a flood of memories, memories of the bare woods in early Spring, of the cawing of crows, the drip of sap into a regiment of pails, the bouquet of odors from the sugar-house, where often the farmer worked far into the night when the run was brisk.

And then there was the fun of sugaring off and perhaps the excitement of screwing slickish strings of hot boiling syrup on a pan of snow, produced miraculously from some protected hollow in the woods.

The sugar bush still has glamour and natural, unspoiled appeal, even though metal pails have replaced wooden buckets and wooden troughs and steam evaporators have taken the place of many iron kettles. In the olden days, hand-hewn sleds carried the tree-tapping and sap-boiling party far into the woods, where they lived like hermits on cornmeal and potatoes while the "syruping down" and "sugaring off" were done.

The story of the maple industry is one of the most romantic of all food stories. It goes back to the days long before white man invaded the domain of the North American Indians. Probably it was about the only sweet known to the red man. The Indians deserve our undying gratitude for discovering that the sap of the maple tree could be converted into one of the finest sweets known to mankind.

It takes forty years to grow a tree to the sugar-producing stage and an eighty-year-old tree is much better. Fifteen gallons of sap per tree is a fair yield in one season, but remember this quantity must be boiled down before it has real flavor and richness.

Often the method of boiling, or perhaps the desire to increase profits by insufficient boiling, account for disappointing, watery syrup.

That original fifteen gallons, boiled down, should produce only one and one-quarter quarts of syrup, or two and one-half pounds of sugar per tree.

Bright, sunny Spring days and crisp nights, with a slight freeze, are ideal for encouraging a good run. This year the unexpected 79 degree "heat wave" in March brought gloom to sugar bush owners, for the nights were too mild.

that first shock of meeting, they both stood back for a long

It lasted for Alec until they were in a cab on their way to the hotel where he always stopped when he was in London. He said, "I'll get rid of my luggage and then we'll go along somewhere and have a cocktail. I suppose you know what happened to the play?"

Gina nodded. "Let's go back to my place and have tea instead of a cocktail." Then she said, "Were you at all prepared for what happened, and how is Caroline taking it?"

Alec answered her last question first. "She's been fine about it. Disappointed, of course, but gallant as the devil. She's already rehearsing for a fairly good part in a new comedy of Sam's. She seemed to feel more badly at having let me down than at having had a personal failure."

"Yes, she would feel that way, I expect. But you haven't told me whether or not you were prepared for a failure."

"Well, I wasn't. The rehearsals seemed to go well enough—not as well as I had hoped, you understand, but well enough. Caroline didn't seem to put much into her lines, but I thought all she needed was an audience to bring out that essential something that was lacking. You know how it is, there are some people who never seem to give a part anything until there is that sea of faces out front."

"Yes, I know, you've told me that before. Even Ainsley is like that, isn't she?"

"Yes. She walks through rehearsals as if she were half asleep, and then on the opening night she fairly hurls herself into the part. Well, I kept telling myself Caroline was like that. I'd watched her on and off all summer in Baltimore and I knew she had what it takes, but it wasn't coming out in my play. Right up until she made her first entrance that opening night, I felt sure she would come through all right."

"But she didn't?"

"No. She never once made the part come alive—and there it was, written expressly for her, inspired by her really, as you know. Yet she muffed it completely. Ironical, isn't it?"

"I don't know. I thought all along it would be an exceedingly difficult role for her to play. I may be wrong, but I should think an actress would need to have had quite a lot of experience to play the part of a very young and sensitive girl. She would have to be able to look back on herself, I should imagine, for a few years at least, have a certain perspective, if you understand what I mean, Alec. Otherwise, she would be bound to be too self-conscious about it all."

"You're probably right. Sam tried to tell me the same thing. Said it would take a woman of thirty, at least, to play the part authentically, but I thought he was crazy. Well, it's too late now and I only hope that the damage, as far as Caroline is concerned, at least, isn't too great."

"If she's already in rehearsal for another show, it probably isn't."

"That's why I urged her to take the part. A small success in this new show will give her back her self-confidence and help her, more quickly than anything, to get a perfectly healthy reaction to the whole situation." He smiled at her suddenly. "But what have you been doing with yourself? Whatever it is, it's agreed with you no end."

There are maple products and alleged "maple" products, but there is no excuse for the leading astray of persons able to read. Many consumers have been inveigled into buying syrup merely because a casual glance at the label led them into believing the product was not adulterated. Read the label carefully and if you are uncertain what the wording implies, ask your dealer.

Within the last few years, many manufacturers have placed, on the market blended products which resemble maple syrup in taste, but which may contain no genuine maple syrup, or at best, a small quantity. Maple products are among the most typical American sweets on the market today. The genuine article seldom costs any more than the imitation product.

The government advises housewives who want "100 per cent pure" maple syrup, to look for that description on the label. Labels that feature the word "maple" are no guarantee of purity.

The most economical way to buy syrup is in the gallon can. Incidentally, prices are slightly higher this year, because of weather conditions. All of last year's crop is gone, whereas usually there is a small carry-over. Because of this shortage, wholesalers are offering producers higher prices for the 1938 vintage syrup.

Vermont and New Hampshire are known as great maple syrup states and the Summer traveler is familiar with the wayside offerings of tempting maple sweets.

New York State ranks second among all the maple-producing states in the country in the quantity of maple products produced annually.

Producers in the Empire State were among the leaders in grading their maple syrup, sugar and other delicacies in accordance with official standards established by the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. Maple products, so graded, always are labeled to indicate that the producers have complied with voluntary state requirements.

In buying directly from a farmer-producer, the consumer can be fairly certain that he is getting top-notch products. The only necessity, then, in buying a product retailed by stores, is to read the label. Demand the best—when you are willing to pay for it.

A generous container of fresh maple syrup will solve many menu problems, as well as suggesting new delicacies. There is the pitcher of syrup for waffles, pancakes and fritters, home-made maple ice-cream (so easy to make with a mechanical icebox), pure ice-cream sundae, maple icing for tea cakes, maple puddings, cookies and candies and maple mousse that is more like a sunset or a poem, than a dessert.

Maple syrup has been called liquid sunshine. Lay in a stock and watch the family expand with the enjoyment of liquid sunshine.

Dear Son:

We welcome you and Helen back from your honeymoon. After you've settled a bit we'll drop in to see your new home.

I remember the day, some thirty years ago, when your Mother and I came back to our first home. I split kindling for the cast-iron kitchen stove, and it took Mother all afternoon to bake some bread. Instead of her vacuum-cleaner, Mother had a broom . . . and how she made it fly. But our prize possession was in the parlor . . . a real talking-machine, with chubby cylinder-records and a big morning-glory horn.

We used to march for miles all over town on our shopping trips. How I fidgeted while Mother shopped. We were both worn out.

Things have changed a lot since then, all right — and you'll both be better off for it. Helen won't have to spend half her days in the kitchen like Mother used to. The advertisements in the daily newspaper will save her those punishing miles of shopping. They'll keep her posted on current prices, give her the names of dependable products, tell her all about special sales. When you come home nights you'll find her fresh as a daisy . . . ready for a jolly evening with your friends.

I'll trade the "good old days" for the good NEW days any day.

But enough of reminiscence . . . I rejoice in the exciting years of youth that are ahead for you both.

Affectionately,

Dad

MORRISVILLE WINS TRIANGULAR TRACK MEET HELD HERE

Bristol Places Second, With Langhorne Trailing In Third Place

CONDITIONS WERE GOOD

Morrisville Scores 33 Points;
Bristol, 26; and Langhorne, 13

By "Herm" Corn

The thirled lads of Bristol high school opened the cinderpath season, yesterday, with a second place berth in a triangular meet with Langhorne and Morrisville, as they chalked up 26 points to Morrisville's 33 and Langhorne's 13.

All conditions were perfect for a successful meet. A fast track and a bright and warm spring sun made possible the low times in the dashes and excellent marks in the field events.

The opener of the day was the 100-yard dash which immediately gave Morrisville a total count of 8 points as Art Beahr and Al Beetle took first and second, respectively, with "Bliz" Wollard, Bristol's wizard of the toe-path, coming next at a close third. The time for this event was clocked at 10:4.

In the 880 yard event, one of the best half miles of this county, A. Johnson, Morrisville, showed his stuff when he led the pack of contestants into the home stretch in the fast time of 2' 10 3-10". Buck Wallace, Morrisville, and Bob Corrigan, Langhorne, followed in second and third places respectively.

All afternoon the local tracksters couldn't do anything in the dashes but shone brightly in the field events. The shot put was one instance of this fact. Danny DiMidio, strong man of the local squad, picked up the iron pill and tossed it for a mere 42' 5 3/4". Second place was won by Wilbur Van Lenten, who never had any idea of his ability for the event until a few hours before in gym class. His heave was 29' 3". Morrisville placed Marsh, third with his best put at 39' 3/4".

The 220 was thrill packed from start to finish. It was a fight between Art Beahr and Bliz Wallace throughout. From the start Wollard took the lead and had to ward off the attempts of Beahr to pass him. The Morrisville man kept coming and passed Bliz to take the event in 24 seconds. Caldwell, Langhorne, placed a good third.

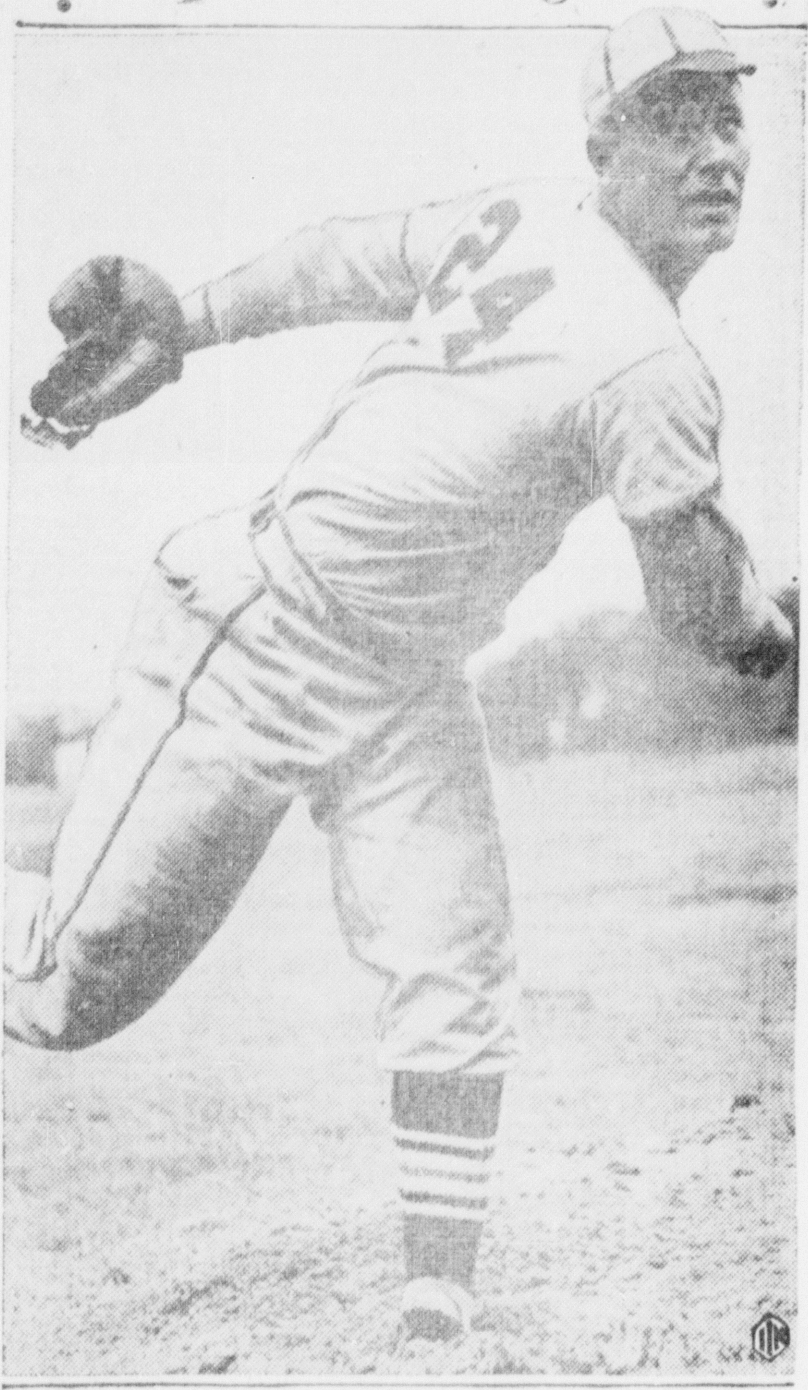

Field events again showed Bristol's power when they copied first and second in the broad jump. Ralph Hart tucked in his legs and leaped 26' 1 3-8" in space for the best jump. Bliz Wallace came next with valuable 19' 9". Langhorne placed Blisphan third with a 19' 5 1-8" leap.

In the 440 yard event, the Morrisville Bulldogs showed their power when they took a "sweep" of the points for this event. Art Beahr galloped around the fastest in the very fast time of 53.9-10 sec. Al Johnson and Al Beetle came next at second and third respectively.

For the first time in Bristol's history the local school had a high jumper yesterday. "A star was born," a natural jumper in the person of Bob Lemon. He jumped 5' 5" and was tied with "Alley" Everitt of Langhorne. Everitt, however, got first place because he had less misses at the height than Lemon. Marsh, Morrisville, came third, jumping 5' 3".

In the mile relay Langhorne's team, consisting of Corrigan, Klein, Newbold and Harding, took the event with the clocking at 5 min. 47 sec. Bristol four came next at a close second. Morrisville brought up the rear in this race. The relay had some high spots in it for the local fans. As the baton was passed to Wollard the anchor man, he was in third position but his continual drive
